

Biography

Wendy L. Johnston

Associate Professor of Political Science – SUNY Adirondack

Wendy L. Johnston, Associate Professor of Political Science at SUNY Adirondack, received her BA in English from the College of St. Joseph, Rutland Vermont, and received her MA in Political Science at the University at Albany (SUNY). Wendy's area of interests are Generational Politics, Women in Politics, Politics and Media, and Civic Engagement.

In her twelfth year at SUNY Adirondack, Professor Johnston teaches a broad array of political science courses, including Introduction to Political Science and Thought, American Government, State and Local Government, Constitutional Law, International Relations, and Comparative Politics.

Professor Johnston has been recognized for her teaching and service to SUNY Adirondack, receiving the SUNY Adirondack's President's Award for Excellence in Teaching, Junior Faculty (2011), the SUNY Chancellor's Award for Excellence in Faculty Service (2016), and has been designated an Online Teaching Ambassador by Open SUNY's Center for Online Teaching Excellence (2017).

Wendy currently serves on the Greater Glens Falls Celebrating Suffrage Committee, helping to organize the Champlain Valley Suffrage Auto Tour for August of 2020.